ESTIEM GUIDE

Introduction to ESTIEM

The organisation known as ESTIEM (European Students of Industrial Engineering and Management) was created to increase communication and cooperation between students and institutions of technology in Europe within the field of Industrial Engineering and Management (IEM). The IEM concept rests on the integration of technological understanding and management skills. The studies provide analytical capacities, engineering knowledge and practical management experiences, which make IEM students valuable since they are able to do business while understanding the underlying technology. As the demand for internationalisation is constantly growing in the uniting Europe, young people with both a European orientation and experience will be most needed."ESTIEM is an exciting network of open-minded students with a professional approach."

ESTIEM is the only Europe-wide organisation of IEM and represents today through its 63 member groups over 47,000 students in 26 countries. Founded in 1990, it aims at establishing and fostering interrelations among students of IEM. Multinational project teams organise a wide scope of Europe-wide activities such as exchanges, conferences, case competitions, lectures and workshops. This makes ESTIEM a unique network connecting people with different cultural backgrounds and experiences.

Local Groups of ESTIEM

The members of ESTIEM – in a legal sense – are the Local Groups (LGs) spread out all over Europe. All are independently-functioning local student associations active in organising and arranging Europe-wide and local activities. All LGs are related to the studies of Industrial Engineering and Management (IEM) only, forming a strong network of IEM students all over the continent. ESTIEM Local Groups are organising and promoting international (read: ESTIEM) events and a number of local activities. The latter are generally directed to students of the local university, such as company tours, career fairs in their university, and social events. Each Local Group is financially self-sustaining and thus needs to be active in fundraising. We simply call the student members ESTIEMers. While being engaged in all this may seem like a lot of work for little gain, being in ESTIEM is about more than just 'adding to your CV'. It is about living the European spirit of today, experiencing friendship from different cultures, taking responsibility and gathering valuable knowledge and experience for one's future life and career. And did we already mention that ESTIEM is a lot of fun?
